

MEDICAL ONCOLOGY INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

SELECTION PROCESS

Candidates will be selected by an evaluation of their Curriculum Vitae and a letter of intent explaining their prior research and scientific interest. They must specify the units where they would want to do their program and time. An answer with the availability of the internship will be given shortly after the submission.

PROGRAM OUTLINE

The ultimate goal of the program is to give Students a true perspective of clinical research and oncology medicine. Different length internships can be established depending on the interest and background of the students:

- Weekly internship: only one area per week
- Monthly internship: Up to four areas

BACKGROUND

CIOCC is a highly specialized cancer center with multidisciplinary units in the major cancer types. These units, led by senior physicians, not only organize the care of these patients but also carry on investigation projects and participate in clinical trials, integrating both research in the clinical and translational arena.

The Program is uniquely positioned to allow students to experience a research opportunity that will allow them to understand how advances at the bench can be translated to the bedside and how knowledge that can be gained from treating patients can then be translated back to the bench.

We have active programs in the units of Gastrointestinal Tumors, Breast, Gynecological, Genitourinary, Lung, Central Nervous System, Musculoskeletal, Prostate and Phases 1 Unit.
